

Michael J. Gomez is a seasoned health care consultant and executive with over 30-plus years experience in assisting health plans, hospitals, physician groups, federal, state and county regulators and health systems.

He has worked in executive leadership roles in health plans, hospitals, physician, and management organizations in the role of operations, business, managed care, and corporate development. He has also served as a former senior HMO regulator where he was involved in licensing, regulating and enforcement of the CA HMO industry.

Mr. Gomez' entrepreneurial leadership and innovative risk-based strategies led him to found Newport PsychCare and its affiliated Pacific Behavioral Management, an MSO which was the largest private outpatient behavioral health provider system in California. He then established a CA joint venture with Magellan Health, which was the largest publicly held behavioral health plan in the country. He served as the CEO of the venture corporation for over 7 years. He has been active throughout his career as a known consultant and advocate on health care policy and projects towards the underserved, economic, social and ethnic inequities, delivery models, and strategic health planning.

Mr. Gomez is a graduate of San Diego State University and has served on numerous not-for-profit boards and advisory groups in the area of workforce development, federally qualified health centers, and inner-city hospitals. He is the recipient of numerous acknowledgments and awards for civic and entrepreneurial healthcare leadership.

Mr. Gomez is married to Felice Harder-Gomez. Together they have three adult children and are longtime residents of Corona del Mar, CA.
